Cut Your Sock Bill In Two

You can get good socks at the price of a collar.

And you will be surprised to find that these money-saving socks are also unusually satisfactory in comfort and wear.

The reason is that Ipswich 1650 Socks are SOFT KNIT—forming a cushion that comforts your corns and that doesn't cut nor break through as soon as harsh, hard, or shiny yarns.

They are made of the best cotton, with absolutely fast dyes, in the oldest and one of the largest hosiery mills of the country.

Guaranteed

If your dealer cannot supply No. 1650 Ipswich Socks, send 25c for 2 pairs, or $1.50 for a dozen; state size, color; also please give name of dealer where you buy hosiery.

If Ipswich Socks fail to give good service, return them to us with dealer's name and we will replace them or refund your money, as you prefer.

One Minute with the Editor

Confidentially

CONFIDENTIALLY, we think that the author of next week's lead story is going to be heard from later on. In May we had two short stories by authors of national reputation,—Meredith Nicholson and Justus Miles Forman. (By the way, this was one of the last stories that Mr. Forman wrote before the Lusitania tragedy cut short his brilliant career.) Both stories were bully.

Now comes a lead story by a newer writer, Florence Ryerson; good enough, we think, to be classed with the work of those others whose work is better known. There's fine satisfaction in this business of getting hold of writers who are new and coming. See if you agree with us that Florence Ryerson is one of that kind.

Two of the Party Were Killed

ARICH man who loves adventure and doesn't mind the cost spent $50,000 in outfitting a party to explore the wilds of South America. Two previous parties had set out for the same region, and were never heard from afterward. The rich man's party straggled back to civilization last year, bringing with it important scientific discoveries, and enough hair-raising adventures to fill a book.

Cleveland Moffett tells the story of the expedition, compressing the whole bookful into a thrilling full page. That comes next week too.

From Another Editor

TO THE EDITOR: That's a good idea of yours, running fewer stories, and publishing one story that is good enough to be called "the story of the week." In fact, I think it such a good idea that I wish I had thought of it first.

Coming

THE autobiography of the most abused man in the world,—a big league umpire. Look for it two weeks from today.

This is the most interesting picture submitted by a subscriber this week. Canaries are peculiarly sensitive to coal gas; the slightest taint in the air will cause them to succumb. So the miners use canaries as life savers. The picture shows a group at a mine where a disaster has occurred, watching the little life savers intently for the first faint sign of death in the air.

Putting It Up to Dr. Lloyd

THE QUESTION: Can a girl who has only a high school education and some business training, and has not been very much in touch with church work, be a successful minister's wife? This is the Rev. Dr. Lloyd's answer:

A GIRL with a good high school education should have received sufficient culture to fill reasonably well any ordinary social position, in a minister's home, or elsewhere. It is not necessary that every girl should go to college, and there are other ways of obtaining the culture of mind and soul necessary to sustain such a position as a minister's wife must occupy. Your business experience is no disqualification, and may indeed be a source of added strength.

If you are to become a minister's wife, you would have to adjust yourself to a good many situations that are quite new to you. You would find it an exacting position, one in which you would be subject to criticism, both reasonable and unreasonable, and you would need to consider in advance whether any of these criticisms would be just. Ministers' wives have largely the same duties that belong to other married women; but there is a range of responsibility outside of these, and it falls heavily upon the wife of a minister.

There are two great questions: First, Do you love this man with all your heart, and will you for his sake meet any hardship that may come, and do it gladly and cheerfully, and be his helper all the way? The other is, Are you heart and soul in sympathy with his work? To that he is already committed. He married that before he married you. You say you have not had much experience in church work. That in itself is no disqualification. Very likely in your work you have not been able to give much time and attention to it; but is your heart in work of that kind? If it is, and you love him, and he loves you, you can somehow adapt your lives to each other.
